JUDGE'S COMMENTS:

Burn Out Relief: Well I was suffering a little bit from over exposure to model dogs when I started this show and then I was introduced to a feisty Aussie Shepherd owned by Springtime that perked my little dull head right up. If you haven't meet her yet your in for a lovely treat. She is following in the footsteps of her kennel mate Stanley and will surely reach her championships just as quickly. Great job and excellent use of grey matter for creative photography. I'll have to rethink my next photo shoot so I can attempt to keep up with her.

Head Studies: Remember your trying to capture realistic and complimentary artistic structure of your breed of dog. If your dog's eyes are not detailed or you can see brush strokes or excessive manufacturing mold material in ears etc your dog doesn't belong in the class.

Performance: Classes such as Agility if the dog loses any forward propulsion in this class that is a fault. Dogs that have stopped to "look at master" or before negotiating an obstacle do not belong in these classes. Agility is all about speed. The same goes with Obedience Scent

Retrieval and any dogs performing Recall that has not return to master and sat down. Perhaps we need a class for dogs that are not in motion, specifically entitled "In Training" ?

Herding: Dogs that have no contact or engagement with the animal or animals they are described as herding or maneuvering are at fault. Especially animals running with or chasing livestock or horses. Horsemen have shot dogs for less since once a dog starts chasing a horse they don't stop and can cause a ton of damage. Even kill or injury adult horses or foals. If the dog is anywhere near the animals front end the dog should have direct eye contact with that animal. Or at very best be dropped slightly in the Dog's front shoulder to show "engagement and control".

Dolls: When using dolls be sure they are looking at their dogs or that their body exhibits actual body language equal to that of the activity they are described as performing. Nothing is more unbelievable than an owner looking off into space while their dog is performing an activity or working a task. I have a thing about search and rescue "victims" who are stiff and non bending. A suggestion is to purchase Mego bendable dolls or get some salvage dolls and take off just an leg or a leg to display at better angles from the disaster.

Puppies: Remember puppies have a very short attention span and they do not have the bone development to run an entire agility course. If you want to compete in agility with your puppies show them as an introduction to an obstacle and how they react to that. They would probably lay down or play on it . Perhaps them would perform it incorrectly such as backing out of the tunnel. Also at 12 months dogs are no longer puppies. They are adults. I did not count these down and I realize this is a show train. But perhaps for next year's show you will want to change that to 11 months old or email the next judge an ask them to change your photo backs for you.

Printing your own photos: Watch if your are printing your own photos. Photos that are on sticky paper or poor quality paper do not show off your entry as well and competition is very tough here. Thin poor quality photo paper will not stand up to rubber banding or sorting in stacks for running a "show train". There are already several photos in the conformation divisions that have missing dot sized color and heavy duty scratches. Sticky paper causes photos to stick to each other and when sorting can be so stuck that the judge will miss the "back" photo all together. Some of the photo ink on some of the self printed photos are showing "blur" after being shuffled so many times. I know the ink manufactures advertise their ink will stand up for several years but they obviously haven't put the photos through photo competition with all the climate changes and bunched up together in shipping boxes.

Breeds Please: I'd like to ask all future judges to please take a little extra time and add the breeds to the Champions or Best dogs. It makes it so much easier for me to do the points in the book. All dogs are filed by breeds in the 3 books I use and when I have to go sorting for a dog that has no breed and I don't recognize it can become a miserable task.

Summary: The quality of everyone's photos have improved so much since I started to judge this club 5 years ago. I truly enjoyed judging this show. There is about 5 inches of snow outside and I'm sitting here in front of the picture window in my office watching another 4" to 6" forecasted snow fall. I have Jimi playing on the computer listening to Angel, Little Wing and Burning the Midnight Lamp. A little bit of The Doors, Warren Zevon and Pink Floyd too. All of which seem very appropriate to the snow fall. The dogs have played outside during the morning chores and are now curled up in their xxlarge cedar filled bed pillows under the large computer U shape desk. My best dog Toby lays with his face buried into his "Love that cedar chips smell" under the window. That way he can "pop up" if he hears anything. I'm in my velour floor length robe with paw print bootie socks on. On the far side desk top (away from the photos) is my large cup of tea and a couple of Chocolate Chip MM cookies. Life couldn't get much better. Thank you so much for letting see your creative minds and sharing your photos. I'll be forwarding these photos on to the March judge as soon as the snow lets up.

For your enjoyment here are the photos of the Top Dogs.
